Subject: Disgusted with proposed Microsoft settlement

The proposed settlement is pitiful, even coming from a Republican administration. No penalty for past criminal activities, no penalties for future illegal activities, no indication that anything meaningful will be done to change Microsoft's behavior. Previous administrations won the case in the courts, and you're walking away from doing anything with that victory. Our only hope is that the remaining states and the EU will show more integrity and courage than the current administration has been able to muster.
